1. There is a new railroad bridge over the Hornad River about 100 meters north of the edge of the village of Kostolany (N 48-48, E 21-15). The bridge has concrete pillars with oblong bases about 12 meters long, 1.2 meters wide, and about 4 meters high. On one side, the pillars are sunk into the banks as part of the railroad embankment. The framework of the bridge consists of two arches about 40 meters long and 4 meters wide. It is supported on transverse struts, and the framework rests in intersections in the supporting pillars about 60 centimeters deep. It is mounted on several steel rollers. 15 JUN 1956 25X1
2. Construction of the bridge was carried out by Tratat Druzby National Enterprise, Mala Vieska Branch, management at Kosice. The bridge was finished at the beginning of 1955. It is not known who supplied the materials. 25 JUN 1956 25X1
